Hixburg

Mr. P. O. Adam, a student Hampden Sidney, preached in the Presbyterian church here last Sunday and notwithstanding the fact that two of his class mates, Messrs. Chatman Binford and Shakespean Morris acted as chaperones this young man delivered a splendid sermon and since it has become known that he contemplates a search for Eve as soon as he makes good at College The writer predicts that the Dawn of Day is very noticable and we shall be glad to have Mr. Adam with us again.

Mr. Richard Fore is on the sick list having suffered the attack of a chill Monday.

Cleveland Lee Clement, the eight year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Cleveland Clement, of Elam, died last Saturday and was buried on Monday at Olive Branch. Services by his pastor Rev. J. M. Moser, and the Prospect choir rendered a most appropriate elegy. Cleveland was an exceptional bright boy and being the only child the parents are greatly distressed and their only comfort is to look forward to the great reunion that is to come hereafter

Quite a number of our farmers attended the tobacco growers club at Appomattox Saturday and Mr. Wilson Hix was appointed to canvass this section of the county with reference to signing the growers contracts. Mr. Floyd Gilliam had to see his share man for his share of some of their crop of tobacco.

Youngest Veteran of War, 16 Tells His Experiences

Richmond can boast of having one of the youngest enlisted men from this State, if not from the nation, when the history of Virginia's part in the world war is written.

Charney L Ragsdale, adopted son of Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Vaughan, had reached the age of fourteen years at that memorable time when the Germans made their last gains toward Paris in the spring of 1918

As he was going down Broad Street one Saturday morning a recruting "regular" slapped him on the shoulder and ask him how he would like to be a real soldier.

This incident gave bim the idea, and before the day was over he had enlisted at a local recruting office and was on his way to Fort Thomas, Ky. That was May 27, 1918.

For two years his parents learned nothing of his whereabouts. It was thought that he had enlisted in the army, as he had often expressed a desire to join the American forces and go in search of Mrs, Vaughan's brother, Wendell Holmes Oliver, who was later killed on the Verdun front.

From Fort Thomas he was sent to Allentown, Pa., and in a few weeks he arrived in France, a proud member of the Evacuation Ambulance, Company 69. After the armistice he was returned to Camy Lee, where he finished his first enlistment of one year.

Not knowing how he would be received if he returned home and having nothing else he could do he re-enlisted in the calvary service for another year. So fearful was the lad that he would be recognized that he only went to town once and then covered his face each time he passed under a street light, it is declared.

Charney states that he was miserable all the time because he thought of his parents and the concern they would have in not knowing of his location. Then one night he dreamed that he returned home and was received with open arms For three susceeding nights he had the same dream, he says, so he decided to go back to his parents.

Charney's host of friends admire his pluck and courage, but it is only with the greatest coaxing that the war hero can be induced to tell his experiences. He is now in the Appomattox Agricultural High School.

Tobacco Growers Mean Business

A large number of tobacco growers of this county attended the meeting called for last Saturday to hear the 5 year contract explained. Mr. Ogg, the State secretary was present and read the contract and explained it to the meeting. Messrs Ferguson, Burke, Harwood, Taylor, Flood and Clement made short addresses, and all contracts in hand were signed, and as soon as another supply can be had it is believed nearly all tobacco growers in Appomattox county will sign the anreement Local farmers in each district will present the contracts to the growers for signatures

There will be meetings held at different points in the county in the near future. Beasre to attend the meeting held in your section Dates announced later.

The plan of organization by which the tobacco growers o Virginia, North and South Carolina propose to market their future crops at a fair price to producer and consumer will be explained.

This plan is successful in fourteen cooperative farm enterprises today It offers a practical solution of the tobacco growers present difficulties by eliminating the excess profits of middle man and tobacco manufacturer, and assuring the farmer a fair price for his products, by a practical method of marketing his own crop.

To avoid the reptition of such starvation prices for tobacco as farmers have received this year, every grower should attend these meetings, and join the organization which is determined to secure fair prices for all tobacco growers.

The principal features of the association are:

A five year binding contract which will not be effective until a half of the tobacco growers in Virginia, North and South Carolina have signed.

The Association will be composed exclusively of tobacco growers, tenants, and landlords receiving their share of crop in tobacco.

Tobacco sold through this Association will be pooled together by type, grade and quality, and sold at the highest price obtainable.

Experts will be secured for marketing the tobacco of the Association, which will be a purely cooperative, commercial merchandising proposition, from start to finish.

Present indications are that 75% of tobacco growers in Virginia will join the Associntion

No tobacco grower in this county should miss these meetings.
